About fifty men assembled at Christian College Friday night as dinner guests of Dr. Woodson Moss in celebration of his sixty-fifth birthday. They included the host's colleagues in the medical profession, members of the University faculty, and Columbia friends. Doctor Moss was born in Columbia and has lived here ever since.

The dinner was served in the college dining room at a U-shaped table. The table was decorated with yellow flowers from Columbia gardens, with bows of black and gold. A large birthday cake was covered with yellow roses and bore the dates 1852-1917.

The stairway and landing, where the program was given, were set with palms and ferns. An orchestra of college girls played there throughout the dinner. Singers on the program were: Miss Anna Laura Johnson of the Christian College faculty and Misses Alberta Elsberry, Gretchen McBride and Marguerite Lockman. The readers were Misses Anne Humphreys Hickman, Martha Schwabe and Helen Bradford.

Doctor Moss was given an ebony, gold-headed cane by the college students. On behalf of the friends at the dinner a leather traveling bag was presented to him by Dean Walter Williams. Doctor Moss responded to the presentations and President A. Ross Hill of the University made an address.

Doctor Moss was the recipient of numerous letters and telegrams of congratulation and good wishes. The drawing rooms, reception hall and dining room were decorated with flowers sent by friends.

CAN FOODS, SAYS GOVERNMENT
Rumor False That U. S. Expects to Take all Home Supplies.

A rumor that the Government expects to take food supplies, especially canned goods, from families has been circulated and is evidently a propaganda on the part of enemies of the United States. The College of Agriculture of the University of Missouri and the United States government wish to assure the people that the rumor is unfounded.

Efforts have been made by the College of Agriculture and the government to persuade families to preserve a large supply of fruits and vegetables with the welfare of the people in view so that an abundant supply of food would be canned and dried and waste prevented.

Although the canning season for many food products has passed, there are still many foods that may be preserved for winter use. Those in charge of the production campaign wish the people to continue to preserve and store food. If each family will store enough canned goods for home use, commercial products will be released for the use of those families who have not had the opportunity to can and for army consumption. The people of Missouri can continue their food storage and conservation work and rest assured that the Government will not confiscate it.

LUTHER'S LETTER FOUND

Was Written by Reformer When He Nailed Theses to Church Door.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 29.—An important addition to Lutheriana has been made by the discovery in the royal archives of a letter written by Martin Luther, the reformer, on the day he nailed his immortal theses on the church door in Wittenberg. The letter is of particular interest from the fact that it was directed to Archbishop Albrecht of Mayence, who was Luther's immediate superior. It contains, like the famous theses, a strong protest against trafficking in spiritual indulgences.

The letter appears first to have been found in a German city by a Swedish Swedish official, who brought it to Sweden some time in the seventeenth century. An old copy exists in Germany, but the existence of the original appears to have been forgotten and its absence long ago caused the German copy to be considered a forgery.

A copy of the Wittenberg theses, signed by Luther's own hand, was found with the letter, and probably accompanied it originally.
